

12-YEAR SENTENCE FOR SCALDING OLD PAUPER TO DEATH

Farm Colony Attendant Pleads Guilty Before Coroner Begins His Inquest.

Three hours after Henry Charlton, an ex-convict and an orderly at the New York City Farm colony, at Castleton, O., was on his way to Sing Sing prison to serve a sentence of twelve years for manslaughter in the first degree, a jury impaneled by Coroner William H. Jackson yesterday on inquest at New Brighton yesterday to discover, if possible, how Harry Williams, a paralytic inmate of the farm, met his death on Jan. 9.

Two hours before Charlton, sometimes known as Alfred Walters, had pleaded guilty before Justice Lester W. Clark in the County Court at Richmond. He said that he and Harry Sinclair, another ex-convict and inmate, had turned scalding water on the aged Williams while giving him a bath. Through his lawyer, he pleaded for clemency.

The remarkable facts concerning the case are that Coroner Jackson apparently took no notice of the case at the time Williams died. Dr. George W. Ford, the coroner's physician, made an examination. He found, as he testified yesterday, that Williams had died of scalding and issued a certificate that death was caused indirectly by hardening of the arteries.

This was true, as the shock of the bath caused the bursting of a blood vessel in the brain. But it was not until he was called upon by the District Attorney that he examined the body and performed an autopsy.

Charlton and others alleged to have been implicated in the crime would now be at liberty had not District Attorney Albert C. Pach, upon hearing rumors of the affair, made a rigid investigation. As a result Dr. S. R. Thomas, surgeon of the S. R. Smith Infirmary, was called upon to perform an autopsy, and this he did in connection with Dr. Ford. The investigation proved that Williams had been plunged into boiling water and died on hour and a half later.

The jury not only returned a verdict that Williams came to his death through being scalded by the attendants, but it awarded the farm for permitting such a tragedy to occur.

Charlton will be tried next Monday and Pach will be examined as to his sanity.

BATH TUB TRUST LOSES; MUST STAND TRIAL.

But Denies Appeal to Quash Two Score Indictments Against Concern.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—United States District Judge A. C. Angell today denied the motion made in behalf of the Ogilvie Lead Company of New York to quash the indictments in the Government's criminal case against the Bath Tub Trust.

This reinstates the case, which is scheduled to come up for trial here Jan. 30. There are about two score defendants.

DOCTOR ENDS "MYSTERY."

Says Gem-Laden Man, Found Unconscious, Was Merely Drunk.

The unconscious man, who was found in the gutter in front of No. 194 West Twenty-seventh street, early today, by Policeman John Hyland, and in whose pockets $1,000 worth of diamonds was found, was revived at the New York Hospital and his identity learned. He is John de Cook, twenty-eight years old, of No. 218 West One Hundred and Fifty-fourth street, a jeweler and diamond polisher.

Dr. Vitor of the hospital staff said his state of coma was due to too much alcohol. It had been supposed the man had been drugged and considerable of a mystery was evolved because of the diamonds found in a wallet in his inside coat pocket.

After his revival at the hospital, he was taken to the Jefferson Market Court, arraigned before Magistrate House on a charge of intoxication, and fined $1.

Compact Entertaining Informative

It seems almost superfluous to comment upon the World Almanac, the 1912 edition of which is now issued, for it has become an institution wherever there is need of reference. The dictionary and the encyclopedia for our words and our general information, and the World Almanac for our more pressing, everyday knowledge of present or more recent affairs and facts. It is like an additional or up-to-date volume of an encyclopedia. Information as to governments and peoples, and the pursuits, the crops, the finances, the activities, religious, civic and social, of these peoples, is given, and sporting matters are not neglected. The World Almanac is an indispensable part of the equipment of every office and every home which keeps up to the times. It fills a place which no other publication fills. A newspaper could not do without it, a lawyer or a clergyman should not. Compact, entertaining, as well as informative, it is by far the best handbook of reference published to-day.
